SEVEN CENTURIES OF STRIFE IN IRELAND ENDS

NEW PLAN, SOLDIERS' BONUS BILL

HARDING CONFERS WITH REPUBLICAN LEADERS ON NEW SUGGESTION.

WOULD PAY WITH THE REFUNDING OF DEBTS OWED THIS COUNTRY

Refunding Bill and Soldiers' Compensation Bill to Be Taken Up Simultaneously.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—An entirely new plan which would permit the enactment of legislation for a soldiers' bonus and for the refunding of the foreign debt at virtually the same time was discussed at a conference tonight between President Harding and Republican leaders of the Senate and House at which plans were laid for the majority in both branches of Congress.

Marking a radical departure from the present Republican legislative program, the proposed plan, it was stated, would provide for adjusted compensation for American ex-service men from payments of interest on the $11,000,000,000 foreign indebtedness to the United States.

Such a plan would make the passage of a soldier's bonus bill contingent upon the passage of one to take care of foreign debt and would practically result in two measures which would be considered almost simultaneously.

The plan suggested is to take the soldiers' bonus bill and the foreign debt refunding bill before the senate finance committee and mold them into measures which would deal collectively with the problems now involved by each separately.

A canvass of the majority side in the senate was said to have provided adequate support for the new proposal, and it was understood that Republican members of the House also favored it.

Democratic support of it was also anticipated, as Senator Simmons of North Carolina, one of the minority leaders and a member of the senate finance committee, advocated the payment of a soldier's bonus from interest on the foreign debt when the legislation was under consideration during the last session.

Weeks and Daugherty There.

The cabinet was represented at the meeting by Attorney General Daugherty and Secretary of War Weeks. President Harding's closest advisers on political matters, John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican National Committee, represented the party's actual machinery. Among the guests were Senator Lodge, the Republican leader; Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip; Senator Watson of Indiana, one of the administration spokesmen in the Senate; Senator Henderson, chairman of the Senate Committee on Commerce; Speaker Gillette, Republican leader; Representative Anderson, Minnesota; Representative Darrow, Pennsylvania; Representative Frazier, Michigan; chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee; and Representative Madden, Illinois, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

During the conference House leaders backed up the program presented to President Harding a few days ago by Republican leader Mondell.

They told the President tonight that their program consisted of the passage of the appropriations bill, a soldier bonus bill, changes in the 3 per cent immigration restriction bill, congressional reapportionment, the Dyer anti-lynching bill and final action on the tariff bill and the foreign loan refunding bill.

All this legislation, leaders said, could be put through Congress with the senate assisting by reasonable prompt action on bills sent to it from the house so that a final adjournment

BODY UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN FOUND IN THE SAN FRANCISCO BAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—The body of a young woman found floating in the bay today is believed by police to be that of Miss Estelle McNulty, 32, daughter of Judge J. F. McNulty, of Fort Clark, N. D., missing since December 19, when she disappeared from her hotel in Oakland. The body was considerably decomposed and final identification is expected to be made by means of her clothing. No motive has been discovered for suicide, although police investigators were informed that a woman answering Miss McNulty's description was seen to leap from Pier 43, on the night of December 29.

MANY NEW CARS MAKE DEBUT AT THE AUTO SHOW

"Rickenbacker," Named for the American Ace, Attracts Much Attention—Former Ford Official Brings Out the Gray, to Sell at About Four Prices—The "Hot-Box" Is a New One That Can Be Packed in the Kitchen; Weighs Only 150 Pounds.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Twelve new makes of cars made their bow before the public tonight at the opening of the National Automobile Show at the Grand Central Palace.

Among the new automobiles, the car which attracted most attention from visitors was the "Rickenbacker," named in honor of Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace of the world war.

Experts were lavish in their praise of the car, which is Rickenbacker's own creation. They pointed to several new features, including total elimination of motor vibration which makes it a striking achievement in the history of automobile construction. According to this car's manufacturer, the elimination of vibration is secured by a new method of isolating the engine and its accessories from the chassis and an extra bearing in position at the extreme front end of the shaft to support a small balancing flywheel. It is thus possible, they say, to drive the car at any speed without experiencing any sensation of vibration.

Another car, and one exhibited at the show but seen at a nearby hotel, was the Gray, manufactured by a Detroit corporation, in which Frank E. Kent, an ex-Ford official, is active. The car sells at about four prices.

A perfectly good fire-fighting automobile that may be packed in the kitchen or kept in the privacy of one's bedroom, under its double fold-out in the opening of the office and created a buzz sensation.

"Hot-Box," as the machine has been named, is a little thing, weighing only 150 pounds. It is made of aluminum and is so small that it can be taken through a 22-inch doorway, has two passages of 18 inches each and in it will hold an engine and a pump of 400 gallons of water.

"Hot-Box" could be kept in the garage without disturbing the room and being of assistance in some emergency with the kitchen fire-alarm.

A single machine of only three wheels, makes up less than a grand piano but can attain a speed of 75 miles an hour. It weighs 150 pounds when made of aluminum and 200 pounds when made of steel. Both machines are fitted with a pump to pump water into a tank of 20 gallons, which may be kept in the basement or in the roof.

LOTTIE PICKFORD RUPP MARRIES SCREEN STAR

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—Many scores of friends and screen celebrities, Mrs. Lottie Pickford Rupp, sister of Mary Pickford and Alan Foster, known in the cinema world as Alan Forrest, were married tonight at the First Methodist church of Hollywood.

Mrs. Pickford was bridesmaid and Mr. Rupp was best man.

MAJORITY OF 7 VOTES FOR TREATY; RESIGNATION OF DE VALERA AS THE PRESIDENT OF REPUBLIC EFFECTIVE

OPPOSITION LOST STRENGTH ALL AFTERNOON—DRAMATIC SCENE IN THE HOUSE WHEN THE MOTION TO TAKE THE VOTE WAS CARRIED AND THE ACTUAL BALLOTING BEGAN—MAJORITY BIGGER THAN EXPECTED.

TREATY, IN EFFECT DECEMBER 6, THIS YEAR, WILL GIVE IRELAND STATUS OF THE BRITISH OVERSEAS DOMINIONS; ULSTER HAS THE CHOICE OF JOINING OR REMAINING OUT

Orders for Removal of British Troops in Ireland Will Be Made Effective at Once—Ulster Officials Say Decision Will Make No Difference to Their Decision to Remain Out of Irish Free State—Arthur Griffith, Founder of Sinn Fein, Likely to Be New Head of Irish Free State With Title of President of the Cabinet.

DUBLIN, Jan. 7.—By a majority of seven votes Dail Eireann tonight ratified the Irish peace treaty, establishing tranquil relations between Britain and Ireland after more than seven centuries of strife.

The vote stood: For ratification, 64; against ratification, 57. The result was a defeat for Eamonn De Valera, "president of the Irish republic," who led the fight for rejection of the pact.

As soon as the result was officially announced by Chairman MacNeill of the Dail, De Valera announced that his resignation as "president of the Irish republic" is effective. He had tendered his resignation on Friday, but consented to hold it in abeyance until the vote was taken on the treaty.

In announcing that his resignation is now effective, De Valera said: "A republic has been established by the will of the Irish people. It can only be disestablished by the will of the people."

UNSEATING OF THE MICHIGAN SENATOR BRINGS ON BATTLE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Senate reacted tonight in the fight to unseat Senator Newberry of Michigan, but friend and foe of Newberry were prepared to push the battle with renewed vigor on Monday when he will appear to defend himself before his senatorial constituents.

A dramatic and eloquent defense of Newberry on the part of his colleagues, Senator Townsend, Republican of Wisconsin, and Senator Thompson, Republican of Michigan, was the outstanding event of today's debate.

On the Democratic side, Senators Weeks of Montana, Trammell of Kansas and Harrison of Mississippi are expected to state the arguments of Townsend. Townsend's speech was regarded by senators tonight as having had the most telling effect of any yet made by Newberry.

There were those who predicted that the Senate would vote to unseat Newberry, but they were all and sundry in error. Townsend is supporting the Michigan Senator, and his colleagues who are his friends.

So that this 4-4 vote, which is the margin for unseating a senator, was a tie. The tie was broken by the vote of the Democratic majority in the Senate, which is 54 to 46.

NOW ABOUT ABOLITION POISON GAS

BANNED, BUT BANNERS OF OPINION MUST BE ENFORCED.

ACTION OVERMINDS ADVICE OF EXPERTS AND TECHNICIANS

Conference Stands of Threshold of Adjournment—Little More to Do.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Overriding the advice of their experts and technicians, the five great powers of the Washington conference today passed the use of poison gas in warfare, as among themselves, and pledged their efforts toward its permanent prohibition by all the civilized nations of the world.

The action of the powers was unanimous, although several of them, notably France and Great Britain, expressed doubts as to whether the prohibition could be enforced in case of warfare, or the chemicals which are developed in peace time purposes are actually the same as those which go into the manufacture of poison gas for war purposes.

And it is believed that the French, and the British, and the American, and the Japanese, and the Italian, and the Chinese, and the Dutch, and the Belgian, and the Greek, and the Portuguese, and the ## BEGIN HERE TODAY

Bill Bronson has led Virginia Tremont into the Clearwater of northern Canada to find her fiancé, Harold Lounsbury, who vanished there six years previously. Disaster separates them from the rest of their party. Kenly Lounsbury, Virginia's fiancé's uncle, and Vesper, Bronson's cook. The man and girl are snowed in in Bill's trapping cabin beyond Grizzly river. Bill seeks his murdered father's lost gold mine. One day he finds Harold, who has turned squaw man, and takes him to Virginia.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Virginia turned back to her new-found lover. She was a little frightened by the expression in his face. His eyes were glowing, the color had risen in his cheeks, he was curiously eager and breathless. "Before he comes," he urged. "We've been apart so long."

His hand reached out and seized hers. He drew her toward him. She didn't resist; she felt a deep self-annoyance that she didn't crave his kisses. He crushed her to him, and his kiss was greedy.

She struggled from his arms and he looked at her in startled amazement. In fact, she was amazed at herself! That first night Bill and Harold made bunk on the floor of the cabin, but such an arrangement could only be temporary.

They might be imprisoned for weeks to come. Bill solved the problem with a single suggestion. They would build a small cabin for the two men to sleep in. Many times he had erected such a structure by his own efforts; the two of them could push it up in a few hours' work.

"I'm really not much good at cabin building," Harold protested. "But I don't see why Bill shouldn't go to work at it. I suppose you hired him for all camp work."

For an instant Virginia stared at him in utter wonder, and then a swift gleam of grave displeasure came into her face.

"You forget, Harold, that it was Bill that brought you back. The thirty days he was hired for were gone long ago." But she softened at once. "It's your duty to help him, and I'll help him, too, if I can."

In the next few days Bill mostly left the two together, trying to find his consolation in the wild life of the forest world outside the cabin. Harold had taken advantage of his absence and had made good progress; Virginia's period of readjustment to him was almost complete.

She did not, however, so frequently into his arms. Somehow, an embarrassment, a sense of inappropriateness and uneasiness assailed her when he tried to claim the caresses that he felt were his due.

"Not now, Harold," she would tell him. "Not until we're established again—at home."

Finally his habits and his actions did not quite meet with her approval. The first of these was only a little thing—a failure to look shaved.

This trouble multiplied and grew on his lips and jaws. Bill, in contrast, shaved with greatest care every evening.

A more important point was his uncleanliness of his proper share of Bill's daily job.

There was a little explosion, one afternoon, when he ventured to advise her in regard to her relations with Bill.

Harold spoke tolerantly, patronizingly. "Those fellows are apt to take an advantage of any familiarity. They're all right if you keep 'em in their place, but they're mighty likely to break loose from it any minute. You never let him call you Virginia."

Virginia's eyes blazed. "Listen, Harold," she exclaimed, "I don't care to hear any more such talk as that. I don't need or want any such warnings. I don't care what you think of Bill; for that matter, you can be sure that Bill doesn't care at all, either. But I'll see to it that you keep your tongue to yourself. Oh, if you only knew—how good, how strong, how true he has been—how tender he has been to me—"

Harold was torn with jealous rage, and in his fury and malice he made the worst mistake of all. "I hope he hasn't been too tender," he suggested, viciously.

The girl answered only with her eyes; but her answer was unmistakable. Harold muttered something unintelligible, half an apology, half an excuse. Then he turned his back and stalked out of the cabin.

XII
The addition of Harold to their number did not influence, for long, Virginia's old relations with Bill. They were comrades as ever; they talked and chatted around the little stove in the hushed nights; they played their favorite melodies on the battered phonograph, and they took the same joyous, exciting expeditions into the wild.

One morning Bill called her early. "We're face to face with a new problem," he announced. "The pack came by last night—the wolf pack. I didn't hear them at all. And they got away with the big moose hide, hanging on the spruce."

"Then we're out of meat?" "All except the little piece outside the door. We've been going through it pretty fast."

Bill spoke true. Their meat consumption had practically doubled since Harold had come. "But if you care to," Bill went on, "we can dash out and see if we can pick up a young caribou or a leftover moose."

She dressed, and at breakfast their exultation over their new trip grew painful to Harold's ears. He announced his intention of going alone.

Bill took rather a new course today. He bent his steps toward a stream that he called Creek Hooper named for the fact that he had once held high hopes of finding his lost mine along its waters, only to find an utter and hopeless failure.

After proceeding a long distance, Bill glanced back in warning and pointed to an entrancing wilderness picture a hundred yards in front.

In a little glade and framed by the forest stood a large bull caribou, flashing and incredibly vivid against the snow.

Incidentally he made a first class target, one that it seemed impossible to miss.

"I'll take him," Harold shouted. "Let me take him."

In a flash Harold realized that here was his opportunity, in one stroke, one easy shot, he could force Virginia's admiration upon himself.

But it was not the way of sportsmen, wandering in the mountain trails, to chance for the first shot at game. Whatever is said is usually in solicitation to a companion to shoot.

In a flash Harold realized that here was his opportunity, in one stroke, one easy shot, he could force Virginia's admiration upon himself.

But it was not the way of sportsmen, wandering in the mountain trails, to chance for the first shot at game. Whatever is said is usually in solicitation to a companion to shoot.

Harold's eyes were fixed on the caribou. He was torn with jealous rage, and in his fury and malice he made the worst mistake of all. "I hope he hasn't been too tender," he suggested, viciously.

The girl answered only with her eyes; but her answer was unmistakable. Harold muttered something unintelligible, half an apology, half an excuse. Then he turned his back and stalked out of the cabin.

The addition of Harold to their number did not influence, for long, Virginia's old relations with Bill. They were comrades as ever; they talked and chatted around the little stove in the hushed nights; they played their favorite melodies on the battered phonograph, and they took the same joyous, exciting expeditions into the wild.

One morning Bill called her early. "We're face to face with a new problem," he announced. "The pack came by last night—the wolf pack. I didn't hear them at all. And they got away with the big moose hide, hanging on the spruce."

"Then we're out of meat?" "All except the little piece outside the door. We've been going through it pretty fast."

Bill spoke true. Their meat consumption had practically doubled since Harold had come. "But if you care to," Bill went on, "we can dash out and see if we can pick up a young caribou or a leftover moose."

She dressed, and at breakfast their exultation over their new trip grew painful to Harold's ears. He announced his intention of going alone.

Bill took rather a new course today. He bent his steps toward a stream that he called Creek Hooper named for the fact that he had once held high hopes of finding his lost mine along its waters, only to find an utter and hopeless failure.

After proceeding a long distance, Bill glanced back in warning and pointed to an entrancing wilderness picture a hundred yards in front.

In a little glade and framed by the forest stood a large bull caribou, flashing and incredibly vivid against the snow.

Incidentally he made a first class target, one that it seemed impossible to miss.

"I'll take him," Harold shouted. "Let me take him."

Colvin B. Brown, Service Bureau Chief, Comes Here

Colvin B. Brown, Chief, Organization Service Bureau U. S. Chamber of Commerce

In response to an invitation from Florida chambers of commerce, Colvin B. Brown, of Washington, chief of the organization service bureau of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will visit twenty-five cities in Florida in January and February for the purpose of discussing local organization problems.

Mr. Brown will be in Daytona January 12 and at a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce Monday night plans for his reception will be made. It is probable a luncheon will be given in one of the hotels, at which Mr. Brown will be the chief speaker.

Mr. Brown is one of the country's leading authorities on chamber of commerce work, is an expert on organization methods and spends much of his time visiting commercial organizations throughout the United States. His work "Building and Maintaining a Local Chamber of Commerce," which has been widely distributed, is used as a text book on the subject.

The chamber of commerce of the United States is a corporation of more than 1,400 business and industrial organizations, and the organization service bureau, of which Mr. Brown is the head, is a repository of the most complete data with respect to organization methods. This information is distributed to commercial organizations through letters and addresses. In his visit to Florida chambers of commerce, Mr. Brown will confer with directors and committees on local organization problems, talk to the membership on organization and cooperation and give expert advice with respect to activities that can be undertaken successfully, and those that should be avoided by business bodies.

Chambers of commerce in this territory which will be visited by Mr. Brown follow: St. Augustine, January 13; Fort Lauderdale, January 15; West Palm Beach, January 17; Melbourne, January 18; Titusville, January 19; Sanford, January 20; Orlando, January 21; Gainesville, January 22; Fort Pierce, January 23; Ft. Pierce, January 24. Chambers of commerce at Unstilla and Mount Dora have been invited to attend the meeting at Gainesville.

YACHTING NEWS

Men J. P. Rauch and daughter, Miss Annmarie Rauch, who have been the guests of her father and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Rauch, at the Half-Inch River Yacht club docks, aboard the lovely cabin cruiser, Leahurst, left Saturday morning for their return trip to Cleveland, Ohio.

The 45-foot cruiser owned by Charles Rossett, of New York City, arrived at the H. R. Y. C. docks Saturday morning with Capt. Morris Johnson in charge and with Mr. and Mrs. Thelma Rossett and son, Louis Rossett, aboard. The party left New York last Tuesday during a blizzard with a temperature of eight above zero, and came as far as Jacksonville by rail, where they went aboard the Leahurst for Daytona. They are very much pleased to find the delightful weather here. They will remain in Daytona over Sunday, after which time they will continue their trip to Miami.

This, the 75-foot tugboat cruiser owned by F. Z. & W. P. Chrysty, who are aboard and are accompanied by Mrs. W. F. Chrysty, is tied up at the south in Florida waters. Capt. Nelson H. R. Y. C. docks for a few weeks, before continuing the trip farther in charge of this handsome boat.

DAMAGE SUIT OVER A BOTTLE OF LIQUOR

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 7.—An unusual suit for damages as a result of the enactment of the prohibition law was filed in Federal court here by Mrs. Irene Dauberman, of Lewisburg, Pa. Heroin Szutowicz, of Milton, Pa., is the defendant.

Mrs. Dauberman charges that last August her husband, Clarence Dauberman, purchased a quart of whiskey from the wife of the defendant and then lost control of his reason and shot Sheriff Renner, of Lewisburg, in the wrist, and John P. Tegmeier, in the chest. Dauberman was later convicted and sentenced to six years in the penitentiary on charges of assault with intent to kill.

Mrs. Dauberman asks for $30,000 damages from Szutowicz because of the humiliation and disgrace brought upon her and for being deprived of the society and financial support of her husband.

AMERICA SHOULD PUNISH ITS OWN GOVERNMENT NOW

SHOULD SERVE AS EXAMPLE TO WORLD AS ERA OF PEACE ENTERS IN.

(Copyright, 1922, by I. N. S.)

DUBLIN, Jan. 7.—"The greatest service the American people can render to Ireland now is to punish their own government to the end that that government shall become, in fact, as well as in theory, the champion of liberty for the world over for every thinking man knows that the world is now entering into an era of peace."

This statement was made tonight by Michael Collins, signatory of the Irish treaty and organizer of the Republican Army, in reply to a speech delivered in the Dail by Harry Boland, Irish envoy to the United States, declaring that American public opinion had considered the Irish question as a British domestic squabble.

In his speech at the Dail, Boland said: "The people in America have been for forty years under the impression that Ireland and England are one and they were merely having a domestic squabble. So the great thing that we had to break down was the fact that Ireland was a British colony and that what we were fighting for was home rule."

As a result of the magnificent fight put up at home by the men of the army, supported by the women of Ireland, the Americans quickly realized that we were fighting for a very good fight for freedom.

"I would like to take this opportunity for thanking the American people for the magnificent support in this struggle. I must say that in this house a few weeks ago a statement was made by the minister of finance which placed us in a very embarrassing position."

"And which every true American sympathizer," interpreted Collins, "in an exclusive statement tonight Collins explained the meaning of this remark. 'I interrupted Deputy Harry Boland this afternoon,' said Collins, 'and the reason for that interruption was that he knows as well as I know that the American government at Washington, so far as the matter of the Irish republic is concerned, has all along deferred to the wishes of the British government.'"

"Surely this is a thing that every true American must deplore and cordially it is a thing that every true American is entitled to know. Instead of having under any delusion such as the speech of thanks by Boland creates."

"Turning to the policy of the opposition at the Dail, Collins said: 'As for the action of the Dail to date, I am unable to understand how people can be such idiots and live. It is like a prize fighter shouting at the ring of his lungs to some one at the ring during a minute interval to hit his opponent on top of the head with an iron bar.'"

"That is what the arguments of these favoring rejection amounts to. They seem to have no realization of the fact that this public assembly of the Dail is only possible through the permission of the British government."

"For the life of me I cannot understand such unreasonableness. They declare that they stand for the republic and for the republic only, and in the next breath they admit they are satisfied with document No. 2 which is earlier than the republic than the treaty."

"Only there was some way of injecting a little ordinary common sense into the heads of some of these deputies there never would have been any doubt after the result of the vote."

"But this has been like a horse race with a baby so close that nobody knew which horse had won until the numbers were posted by the judge."

CARPENTIER WILL CHALLENGE JACK DEMPSEY FOR BOUT

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Georges Carpentier, French heavyweight champion, declared in an interview today that he will challenge Jack Dempsey, American title holder, to a return bout in the event that the decisively defeated George Cook, of Australia, when they meet here this month.

CHILDREN MUST HAVE VITAMINES IN FOOD

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 7.—That many children do not receive the right kind of food is the claim made by Prof. J. P. Lyman, Ohio State University. "Malnutrition is common in all parts of America and among all classes," declared Prof. Lyman.

"A nutrition survey in a state not far from Ohio recently revealed fifty-seven per cent of the children getting enough to eat, but only eleven per cent of them getting food properly balanced to their nutritive requirements."

"The main deficiency was in vitamins-bearing foods, such as vegetables, fruit and milk. Failure to provide such food for growing children leads to conditions which differ only in degree from those in the Balkan countries."

"There, as here, the principal lack is in vitamins. There they do not have such foods. Here we do not seem to know how properly to use what we have."

NEW PLAN, SOLDIERS' PREMIER GETS BONUS BILL

Early Adjournment
The necessity for an early summer adjournment was stressed by the house members because of the elections next November and the certainty of a hot campaign campaign.

House leaders said they had not overlooked in their calculations, the work ahead of the session in considering the treaty, getting out of the armament limitation conference, and the delay to legislation that would result. They were of the opinion that senate could clear its calendar in time to permit of the early adjournment. The ways and means committee, Fordney said, will hold itself in readiness to act promptly on the tariff bill and on the foreign loan refunding bill, as soon as either could be passed by the senate and sent back to the house.

Necessity for early action on the tariff bill was presented by the non-leaders because of its political effect. They want the law working by the time the campaign opens. They want the bonus legislation passed to make good pledges already given.

The house finds its machinery moving with reasonable and satisfactory smoothness and its business well advanced, Mondell told the President.

Demands on Interest Payment
The chief obstacle in the way of the new bonus plan, it was said, is the uncertainty as to when the foreign nations indebted to the United States will begin making payments of interest on their loans.

Republican members of the senate finance committee were confident that the difference of opinion existing between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and the committee with respect to the fixing of a time for the payment of interest due on the foreign debt would be eventually smoothed out.

The foreign debt bill was amended by the committee so as to provide for semi-annual payments of interest, which is opposed to the provision, and has informed the committee that rather than accept it he would prefer not to have any new foreign debt legislation at all.

The fear that the United States may be unable to collect even interest on time to come in sufficient quantities to provide for extremely conservative was regarded as likely to lead to considerable opposition in both the senate and house to any plan to link the soldier bonus with the foreign debt.

It was explained, however, that the new plan merely was a tentative plan and one of several which administration leaders have under consideration in their efforts to reach a solution of the many acute problems wrapped up with both the soldier bonus and the foreign debt.

PREPARATIONS READY FOR ARBUCKLE'S NEW TRIAL AT 'FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Although the exact day on which George "Burrhead" Arbuckle will go on trial again for manslaughter remained in doubt tonight, the preparations for the new court proceedings were completed.

Arbuckle, in high spirits, was looking out for the long court stage. He arrived here today accompanied by his wife, who has been his constant companion since his arrest.

Indication tonight seemed to lead to the possibility that the new trial, although the state would prefer the case to go on until the following Monday.

Announcement made today by District Attorney Brady that the second trial of Arbuckle will be postponed until the grand jury has heard charges on the grand jury indictment which charged him with manslaughter for Virginia Raper's death instead of the police court holding. The county eliminates from the case the possibility of a retrial, the "arrest" was sworn to the police court charge.

FOREST RANGER EATS TNT. WITH PANCAKES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—Edward R. Hamilton, a forest ranger, stationed at Santa Barbara, recently had the unique experience of partaking heartily of pancakes containing TNT without suffering any serious effects.

Hamilton was visiting friends on a mining claim near Arroyo, Calif. One of his co-partners presented pancakes in honor of the occasion. After the meal it was discovered that a spoon used in mixing the pancakes had been taken from a can of dynamite TNT. The spoon had been brought home with the exploding.

"I did not experience any ill or forward results from the consumption of TNT," Hamilton said, "and I should like to say—rather simply, like, too, that I would be willing to eat it in avoiding sudden shocks and jolts, and for the first time in my life I made up my mind I would eat away from a fight."

But now I am ready to meet any one if the case arises, and it might also be mentioned that the smoking again after quite a little vacation in this line."

REFUGEES NOT WANTED

CAIRO, Jan. 7.—Christian refugees from Asia Minor, fleeing from Kemal's Turks, are being refused admission. They have been refused on the ground that the French in Syria nor the Palestine government want them.

GOOD NEWS AT CANNES MEET

GRIFFITH LIKELY TO BE THE HEAD OF NEW IRISH FREE STATE.

CANNES, France, Jan. 7.—Premier Lloyd George, who has cut the Irish " Gordian" knot which has baffled Irish statesmen for 750 years, was in bed tonight when news was telephoned to his villa by International News Service that the Irish treaty which he negotiated had been ratified. Attaches of the premier's delegation expressed a little disappointment over the narrow margin by which the treaty had carried.

The British colony at the Hotel Carlton rejoiced over the Irish vote. All during the day predictions had been made as to how the treaty was carried, and the most optimistic prognosticators had hoped for a 74 to 56 vote.

Premier Briand, when notified of the result of the Irish vote, is the International News Service said: "I am glad to hear that the question is all settled. It is so to congratulate Lloyd George the first time in the morning."

Troops to Be Removed
LONDON, Jan. 7.—Orders for removal of British troops from Southern Ireland will be made effective immediately, it was learned in government circles tonight. Plans for the transfer of the British soldiers were cancelled when it appeared that David Greaves at Dublin might reject the Irish peace treaty.

Sinn Fein Won't Change
BELFAST, Jan. 7.—Officials of the Sinn Fein government today declared tonight that ratification of the Irish peace treaty by the Sinn Fein parliament at Dublin would not change the decision of Ulster to remain out of the Irish Free State. They added that they would make a strong fight against the detachment of any of Ulster territory to be added to the Irish Free State.

Strong forces of soldiers and police men patrolled the streets, strictly enforcing the new curfew law to prevent outbreaks of disorders.

Griffith to Be President
DUBLIN, Jan. 7.—It was freely predicted tonight that Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein and "vice president of the Irish republic," will be the first head of the new government of the Irish Free State. His 60th birthday will be celebrated on the 10th.

Griffith is known as one of the cleverest writers of political pamphlets in Ireland. The grand conservative leader in jail for his activities against the British in Ireland.

JAP GOVERNMENT TO DENY EXISTENCE OF THE SECRET TREATY

TOKYO, Jan. 7.—The Japanese government will make an official denial of the existence of the secret treaty between Japan and Germany, it was learned today. The Japanese government has been accused of having a secret treaty with Germany, which would give Germany a large share of the Japanese empire in the event of a war.

NOW DOUBT ADDITION OF POISON GAS

Tonight, at the end of the eighth week, the conference apparently stood on the threshold of adjournment. One more week will see everything accomplished that can be accomplished, according to the opinion generally expressed tonight in both American and foreign circles.

The drafting experts made good progress today on the formation of the five-powered naval treaty. Hope was expressed that it may be in shape for presentation to the full committee on Monday, and then, if speedily ratified, an open session will be called for its presentation to the world.

In official quarters tonight it was said that a plenary session was in sight for Tuesday or Wednesday.

The drafting of a nine-powered treaty regarding China, and the Si-bing question will then remain the only major tasks of the conference. So far, the drafting experts have not begun consideration of the Chinese treaty.

A meeting of the Far East committee will be called for next week, and it is expected that the Chinese will take advantage of the session to again press the powers to consider the validity of the 21 demands. Every indication points to their request being turned down.

CHICAGO BUILDERS DECLARE FOR OPEN SHOP; MAY BE STRIKE

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—"Open shop" as a permanent proposition was declared in the Chicago building trades tonight.

The citizens' committee announced that if a strike is called by any union, "we will open contractors to continue their operations with such men as are willing to work in accordance with the laws of the state, and will permanently establish the 'open shop' in Chicago."

The committee's action is its answer to the action of the building trade union, which asserted that it was taking and decided to call the new men from jobs where nonunion are employed.

The without stopping work on more than $100,000 worth of construction, is scheduled for Monday.

DE VALERA'S MOTHER NOT PLEASED WITH IRISH PEACE TREATY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 7.—Mrs. Catherine Wheeler, mother of Eamon De Valera, tonight declared she would leave home "about 1914" rather than sign the treaty between Ireland and England.

Her mother, who is 80 years old, said she could not understand how her son could have signed the treaty, which would give Ireland independence.

SOUTHERN WOMEN ECLIPSE ALL OTHERS SAYS CHARL WILLIAMS

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—"If you have political aspirations, go South, young woman!"

That was the advice today of Miss Charl Williams, of Memphis, Tenn., president of the National Education association. Miss Williams says woman suffrage has increased—if possible—the chivalry of the Southern man.

"Because of the traditional chivalry of Southern men, women in the South have a better chance of having high public offices than in any other section of the country," she said. "The Southern man's reverence for womanhood makes him feel that if a fine woman wants a political office, it is only courtesy on the part of the men to give it to her."

Miss Williams, who was chairman of the committee representing the Southern states, which "put over" ratification in Tennessee, failed to predict that the day was coming when women would hold most of the political jobs in the South because the chivalrous Southern politician could not bring himself to run against a lady.

She did predict a renaissance in the South as the result of the woman vote. "I think the Southern woman will show more political independence than even the new woman voter in other sections of the country," said Miss Williams. "The Southern woman, in spite of the fact that she is pictured as a 'plantation flower' who cannot live without the protection of man, feels freer than women in other parts of the country. This is because she is not afraid of her man. She has never had reason to be. She still has the protection of the chivalry that has made the South so wonderful and at the same time she is absolutely on an equal footing with the men."

Weeks Business Review

Business for the week ended Dec. 31, 1931, was characterized by a general decline in activity, with a notable exception in the cotton market. The cotton market showed a strong upward trend, with prices rising from 15.00 to 16.00. This was due to a combination of factors, including a shortage of supply and a strong demand from foreign buyers. The rest of the market, however, was in a state of general decline. Prices for wheat, barley, and oats all fell, with wheat dropping from 1.15 to 1.10. The meat market also showed a decline, with prices for beef and pork falling. The poultry market was also in a state of decline, with prices for chickens and turkeys falling. The dairy market was also in a state of decline, with prices for milk and butter falling. The produce market was also in a state of decline, with prices for fruits and vegetables falling. The overall picture was one of general decline, with the cotton market being the only exception.

Conrad is Host to Stockholders and Officials of New Beach Bank

Fred N. Conrad, president of the new Atlantic Bank and Trust Company, which opened its doors last Tuesday, was host to the officers, directors and stockholders and their wives at an elaborate dinner given last night in the Princess Isabella.

Mr. Conrad's guests numbered seventy-three and when the speech-making began he was showered with compliments both as a host and as one of the state's most enterprising and successful financiers.

Robert S. Holmes presided as toastmaster and introduced the speakers, who included Mr. Conrad, Dr. Lincoln Hulley, president of Stetson University, who spoke on "The Duty of Stockholders and Directors to Their Institution," Dr. Benjamin F. Allen, who discussed the financial situation in Europe, A. Milligan, manager of the bank, C. A. Randall, cashier, and Rev. W. L. Lewis, pastor of the Congregational church.

Dr. Hulley's address, while containing much humor, was filled with sound advice and he went fully into the relations which always should characterize the stockholders and directors, and also the depositors, and the banking institution in which they are particularly interested.

The address of Dr. Allen was one of the most interesting features of the evening. Dr. Allen, who is to speak in the Auditorium today on "Germany, Today and Tomorrow," imparted much valuable information as to the financial condition of the European countries as an aftermath of the war. He recently has spent seven months on the other side studying the situation there and is in position to speak with authority.

At the conclusion of the addresses, Mr. Holmes called on Mrs. C. M. Ringham, wife of Colonel Ringham, vice president of the Merchants Bank, for a toast, and she paid very pleasing compliments to the host and to the officers and directors.

Earl Frazer Newberry, director of the bank engaged here for the winter season, was in charge of the music.

Volusia County Y. M. C. A., Its Aims and Ambitions, Results Accomplished in Two Years

By L. R. REYNOLDS

County Y. M. C. A. Secretary

It is not the purpose of this article to give a statistical report of the activities of the Volusia County Y. M. C. A.

It is generally known among the permanent residents of Volusia county that the Y. M. C. A. owns forty acres on Lake Winona, four miles from DeLeon Springs. This plot of ground has been deeded by the Bond Lumber company to the Volusia County Y. M. C. A. Here the committee has erected a permanent equipment, with a kitchen and dining room that will accommodate 75 boys; permanent sleeping bunks with army steel cots, has sunk a deep well and set the posts for a fence around the forty acres. Much might be said about the number who have enjoyed the training and the character building program conducted by the Y. M. C. A. during the vacation periods and much more, also, might be said about the various group activities promoted throughout the county, but I feel that we are entitled to know that we are not a little isolated group, attempting to promote a program here in Volusia county alone, but we should know that we are a part of a great world brotherhood and that the Young Men's Christian Association is doing in the rural section of both a type of work similar to that which we are doing here in Volusia county.

Few people realize the size and scope of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association. In America alone there are about 2,000 associations, with well equipped buildings, more than 5,000 paid officers, about 50,000 directors and volunteer committees and a total membership of young men and boys, passing the million mark. The property value in the United States is about $150,000,000.

The association is firmly established, with 298 modern Y. M. C. A. buildings in 139 chief cities and 268 universities and student centers in 21 foreign countries. There is no disputing the fact that these are powerful agencies in disseminating international good will.

The association is highly departmentalized and seeks to meet the needs of all grades and classes of men and boys, with a program of service which appeals to every interest of a man or boy. We have our Industrial Department, working in mines and factories and lumber camps, the Railroad Department, ministering to the needs of that great army of railroad employees and employees, the Student Department, which functions in our great universities and colleges, the Colored Department, which seeks to meet the needs of the great hosts of our colored population; the Physical Department, the Boy's Department, the Educational and Vocational Department, the Religious Work Department, the City Association, with its great facilities for turning out the highest type of manhood, and last but not least, the County Department.

For more than 30 years we have been developing the type of association program, which reaches down into the small town and rural community, which is too small to maintain a building, but which has its needs, often even more acute than those of the larger community.

The South has been rather slow to introduce this type of association work, while the North and West have had a large number of counties in successful operation for the last 20 years. Michigan alone has 32 counties organized on this basis. Every county in Connecticut is operating on a county-wide, non-equipped program. California has done some marvelous work in the county field. This has been true also of Minnesota and Ohio and New Jersey. All told there are about 225 counties in the United States operating on this basis. In the South we have only about 16 counties. In fact, the oldest county in the South is only four years old and we have that county here in Florida.

Volusia county, organized late in 1919, began her active work January, 1920. She is the fourth county in the state to adopt this form of association program. The other counties are Orange, Polk and Marion. Marion, at the present time, has no secretary. In passing it might be well to state that perhaps the county type of work is the most difficult to maintain, because it is so abstract and so intangible that it is hard to maintain the interest of a constituency. We have no privileges to sell, we have no buildings to operate, and therefore, our activities are not so easily kept before the public.

The work in this county is under the management of a board of twenty-five directors, known as the county committee. It is composed of the best business and professional men in the county. This board of directors is incorporated and operates under a charter not organized for profit. The present officers are:

Dr. Dean T. Smith, Daytona, chairman.

Capt. C. R. M. Sheppard, DeLand, first vice chairman.

M. W. Ashton, cashier of the State bank, New Smyrna, second vice chairman.

W. J. Gardner of the law firm of Gardner & Barnes, Daytona, recording secretary.

There are a number of subcommittees with special responsibility for certain phases of the program. Our camp committee, for example, is composed of the following men:

R. H. Boyd, cashier Volusia County bank, DeLand.

M. W. Ashton, New Smyrna.

J. H. Dugan of Dugan Bros. food store company, Daytona.

There are three fully organized local associations in the county with small co-operating committees in various other points in the county. These local associations are at Daytona, DeLand and New Smyrna. They have their own autonomy, as much so as the City Association at Jacksonville, with its extensive plant. They determine, with the assistance of the county secretary, what activities are to be promoted in their respective communities. They are at liberty, at any time, to launch a bigger program and a more intensive work, by incorporating and purchasing property, erecting a building and employing a staff.

The association, with its 75 years' experience in specialized work with men and boys throughout the world, seeks to bring down to the local community the benefit of what it has discovered. It does not say a community is too small to have a building, but it does remind a community of two dangers, viz., the danger of putting all available money into an enormous building, as is sometimes done in the case of school plants and have nothing left to maintain the plant with and to employ a staff for its largest use, or they make the other mistake of erecting a small, cheap building, which perhaps may be adequate for the present, but in a growing community soon becomes too small and fails to command the respect and the pride that a community should have in such a plant. The county work is not opposed to the modern building; on the other hand, it encourages the value use of all equipment, but it insists that the first essential in the building of character is not a plant, but a personality. It seeks, therefore, to develop the altruistic spirit and to cultivate a spirit of brotherhood and a good will among all classes. It seeks to unite groups of boys on a common basis of friendship. It seeks to develop latent leadership and challenge men to take worthy of their best, and when you get a group of men who will sit down around a common table and face the problems of the community like men, you have the foundation work laid, which will guarantee right relationships and a right attitude toward all human beings and the proper value of the individual and in a soul like this you can grow Christian manhood, and Christian manhood can revolutionize a community and transform the world.

The Kentucky club, which is an auxiliary to the Triple Cities Tourist club, entertained all organized state tourist clubs Friday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Sallie Johnson Burge on Peninsula drive, Daytona Beach.

The rooms were very tastefully decorated in poinsettias and red ribbons with green foliage, which carried out the color scheme of red and green.

The guests were met at the door by Kentucky ladies, who introduced them around among the various guests, and a most delightful afternoon was spent.

A four piece orchestra was on hand and furnished music throughout the afternoon, and refreshments consisting of fruit punch and waters were served the guests.

This reception was given in order to increase interest in the tourist club organizations of the various states, of which there is something like twelve that have already organized, all of which are auxiliaries of the Triple Cities Tourist club.

John Anderson Downing Price Early Halifax History

By NELSON M. SAWYER

Early that summer a wreck came ashore and they built the cottage now owned by Philip Fagen, called Vera Cruz from the name of the ship from whose timbers it was made. Here Mr. Anderson lived all the summer while the hotel was building. At that time it was the only habitation on the beach between St. Augustine and the inlet.

While in business Mr. Anderson was a hotel man primarily, yet his dearest interest in Florida was its good roads and for these he labored continuously and unceasingly, always blazing out new routes and working to keep the old ones in the best of condition. There was not a man in the state who was more thoroughly alive to the need of these roads or who knew more about the best routes and manner of construction. Indeed, he once told the writer that the very first work he ever did in Ormond was the day of his arrival when the wagon on which he was coming across country from Volusia on the St. Johns river became mired in a bog just this side of where Mr. Fagen's place now is and he got out and lent a hand to the men who were working on the road at the time, till they made the spot passable.

The highway from Jacksonville to Miami was his idea and during the last five years of his life he devoted nearly all his time and energy to that project and the people for the counties along the line have recognized the work by calling it the John Anderson Highway.

Joseph Downing Price, who with two friends from Kentucky, took up land just to the north of the place where the hotel now stands, was associated with John Anderson in the building and later in the management of the hotel, and these two men spent their whole lives in working and planning for the best interests of the little town they loved and for the business they started to develop. Later, wishing to enlarge the hotel more than their own capital would permit, they enlisted the interest of Mr. Fagen, who built several additions while retaining them in the management until the death of each, which came within a single year, 1911.

OSTINOLA

At the time of the coming to Florida of the Spanish and French settlers in the sixteenth century, this section was inhabited by a race of natives divided into several tribes, each under its own chief or "cacique." Those living along the Halifax river were, from all accounts we have, a gentle, peace-loving people, not given to war, but living homely, quiet lives, subsisting upon the grains they raised, for they were an agricultural people, the birds and animals they killed with their bows and arrows and the fish they caught with their nets and spears. During the winter months, as shown by the huge mounds of shells where their villages were situated, oysters were the principal article of diet. This was the original race that was a century later overrun and the remnant finally absorbed by the Creeks and the Red-sticks or Seminoles, who came down from the mountains of Georgia and the Carolinas, a more warlike and stronger people, of which Coconoches and Oseola were later chiefs.

At the time the French Huguenots settled at Port Caroline on the River of May, as they called what we now know as the St. Johns, Ostinola was the Cacique who governed that section along both sides of the Halifax river from the head waters of Smith's and Bulow Creeks down to the inlet at New Smyrna. His province was known as Torontia, an Indian word meaning Land of Sunshine, and its villages were scattered along both banks of the river. The principal one where was his residence was, as nearly as can be ascertained, on what is now known as the Shell Mound at Hernandez Point, with a smaller village just opposite on the peninsula. Their houses were commodious and comfortable; made by setting posts in a square with the sides and tops thatched with palmetto leaves, which style has been followed by all even to the early settlers of the nineteenth century in this country. In the center was an opening for the smoke of the fire which they built in a sand pit in the center of the floor, to escape through the roof. Each family lived by itself, although all property was held in common, and the bond of family life, as with nearly all primitive peoples, was especially strong. Ostinola and his wife, Cowena, had no children of their own, which was a grievous disappointment to them, but they had living with them as an adopted child, the daughter of Cowena's sister, the Princess Issena.

JAMES ORMOND

After the Revolutionary War, when Florida was ceded back to Spain, the English settlers from the Bahamas were induced by great concessions to take up plantations along the Halifax River and Mosquito Lagoon south of the Inlet. The Spaniards were ever conquerors rather than settlers. They were furious fighters and ruthless destroyers but the hard manual labor of building a settlement in the wilderness had no charms for them, and their government, noting what progress the British had made in their short occupancy of the territory, offered great grants of fine land to any who would settle plantations in Florida. So in 1785 many Scotch, Irish and English families located on immense plantations along the East Coast, using the broad rivers as their highways. The town of Ormond takes its name from the family name of two brothers who came from the Bahamas in that year and settled on a plantation they called Hamletta at the head of the Halifax river where the Tomoka flows into the broad basin. At the time of the Seminole war, James Ormond, grandson of the original settler, Captain James Ormond, then a lad of 17, fled to Georgia, after the death of his father, but came back with a Georgia company and was present at the Battle of Dunlawton (about opposite Port Orange) where the leader on the Indian side was his old playfellow of the Tomoka, Coconoches, son of Philip Emathla.

PHILIP EMATHLA

In the two centuries past since Ostinola reigned at Torontia, the more warlike Seminoles and Creeks from the mountain districts of Georgia and Carolina had come down and overrun and finally absorbed the remnant of that peaceful, agricultural tribes that originally inhabited the peninsula of Florida, and when the white settlers began to come in large numbers these tribes strongly objected to being in their turn ousted by the still stronger whites, and for nearly fifty years it was a continual series of skirmishes that sometimes arose to the dignity of being called a battle.

In the early part of the nineteenth century one of the most prominent chiefs was Philip, called "Emathla," the leader." He was a far-sighted man and saw that the whites were bound to conquer in the end, and feeling that the only way for the nation to live at all was to submit to being dominated by the whites, he held his people in check for a number of years until his death, after which his son, Coconoches, still hardly more than a boy and strongly under the influence of Oseola, who had been adopted and grown up in the family of Philip, could not feel as his old father had felt, and resolved to rally the various tribes together and drive out the white invaders if possible. This resolve was the beginning of the long and bloody Seminole War. The final event that precipitated the war was the capture of Oseola's wife and the narrow escape of Nita Pacheco, the sweetheart of Coconoches, at the hands of the playcatchers. During the early part of the nineteenth century, slaves of the Georgia planters were continually escaping from captivity and fled south into Florida, where once across the border they were aided by the Indians who took them into the tribe as members. Therefore the planters succeeded in getting a law made that wherever a man or woman who showed any trace of African blood could be taken back and sold as a slave in the states north of Florida. This law was made use of by a class of whites called slave catchers, who made a business of prowling around the Indian camps and picking up any woman or child they could get hold of and taking them up into Georgia and selling them as slaves. Nita was the daughter of one of the few Spanish planters left in Florida and his wife had some colored blood, and by the law she and her children could be taken as slaves, although she had always been a free woman. The slave catcher came one night and captured her and her younger son, Louis, but Nita escaped and fled through the thick woods in the night from her home on the Tomoka and in the gray dawn appeared at the Indian camp where she was rescued and adopted into the tribe and finally became the wife of Coconoches. Louis, who was sold as a slave, came back into Florida over on the West Coast with his master who was in the army and he was used as the guide by Major Bades, named to him a name who knew the country from childhood, and who led the whites into the trap laid by Coconoches, resulting in the fearful Dade Massacre.

After were the aspirants for members of the city council.

J. L. Wallace had just opened a cigar store on Beach street.

John F. Forbes was at that time president of Stetson university at Deland.

The Florida State Press association was meeting at Miami. Not a single person who participated in the long program is in the newspaper business in Florida today.

Last that year commenced on February, 1904.

William Wickett at that time conducted an ice factory in Daytona. Launch races were then held on the Halifax river.

J. B. Morris was then an employee of the Bond & Bond company and shortly afterwards went to West Palm Beach as manager of a lumber company there.

James Long had just sold a grocery business which he long conducted in Daytona and left for Colorado Springs. Mr. Long later moved to Beaumont, Tex., where he recently died.

F. S. Conrad and J. W. Wilkinson had just formed a partnership for the transaction of insurance business, the firm name being Wilkinson & Conrad.

J. B. Moore was then proprietor of the Halifax River Yacht club. Hollywood avenue was not then opened between Oseola and Tomoka.

There was but a trail between Tomoka and Deland in the required fully five hours from Daytona to the end. The road between Daytona and Deland was less than a mile and was almost a straight line. There was an unbroken line of trees and single automobiles in Daytona and Deland.

Anderson & Price were owners of Hotel Ormond. The "Mary B." had just gone to the inlet, George H. Ladd announced his candidacy for mayor.

At that time Helen W. the great mental science in the height of her popularity. Another with land, Col. C. C. Post they great experiments at aiming to shoot a city. Both Col. and Mrs. Post been dead.

J. R. Barrett was then mayor of the Florida East Coast, and Henry M. Flagler to dream of building a railway West, a project then completely feasible as only a fancy.

The Everglades were at thought of as only a waste with no value whatever.

And ever and anon mentioned many more names of a generation almost past.

Growth of the Daytona News—A Reflection of Its Publisher's Aims

By R. GORDON MOFFATT

Twenty-one years ago today—the length of a life from birth to majority—was published the first issue of the Daytona News under the editorship and management of T. E. Fitzgerald. In that majority of years Mr. Fitzgerald has continued the publication of the Daytona News, has brought it from an obscure weekly to an influential daily which today ranks with the leading newspapers of the state. In the story of the rise of the newspaper is reflected the growth and expansion of the community, each in keeping with the other, since it is true that there is no greater factor looking toward progress of a community than its public mouthpiece—the daily newspaper.

In the history of the past twenty-one years, in the files of the newspaper as it depicts the growth of the community, is a story of untold interest to those who since that time have come to love Daytona and the Halifax Country, and who know it as God's own favored spot, the Land of Sunshine and Happiness.

A brief sketch of the newspaper of twenty-one years ago, of the physical plant and its intimate touches, which seem almost ridiculous in the face of present day advances, of the changes which have taken place in that length of time, and of the person who has guided the destinies of the infant newspaper in swaddling clothes to its present majority status—these and other intimate views is the purpose of this edition, that those who have not been fortunate in living close to the growth of the newspaper and the community may appreciate somewhat the rapid rise which Daytona and the Halifax Country have made, sponsored by the Daytona News and the progress of the community.

The Guiding Hand
As is true in every business, in some to a greater extent than in others, the personnel of the guiding mind and hand of a newspaper makes for success or failure of that paper. A newspaper is perhaps of a more intimate nature than most business lines, and thus the newspaper depicts the progressive spirit of the one whose efforts go toward its upbuilding.

Without flattery but also without fear of contradiction, it may be said that T. E. Fitzgerald, who has carried the Daytona News through this twenty-one years of progress has been most influential in directing public thought and opinion toward a greater Daytona, through the mirror of his newspaper, which has reflected his every aim toward the progress of the community. That he has gained his end in many respects, and has accomplished many improvements in the state, as is attested to by the messages received by him, published in another section of this edition, from those who have been allied with him in the newspaper business these twenty-one years.

In addition to his many newspaper affiliations, Mr. Fitzgerald has been closely identified with many movements for the betterment of the city, both business and socially.

Having been instrumental in the formation of the Daytona Kiwanis Club, affiliated with the Kiwanis International, he was elected its first president, which term came to him several months ago when he was elected lieutenant governor of the Alabama Florida district of the Kiwanis International.

A past exalted ruler and charter member of the Daytona Lodge, No. 1141, B. P. O. E., and a past district deputy grand exalted ruler of the Elks, belonging to the Chapter and Commandery of the Masonic order and member of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, past secretary of the Florida East Coast Automobile Association, holding the rank of lieutenant as quartermaster and commissary of the Social Battalion, Second Regiment, Florida National Guard, some years ago—these and a number of other affiliations are representative of his prominence in the social and business life of the community.

With ever the aim in mind of making Daytona and the Halifax Country the greatest community in which to live, one of progress and progressiveness, The Daytona News, under the management of Mr. Fitzgerald, has kept a lap ahead of the rapid growth of the community, that it might of way lend a helping hand and assist in guiding its destinies.

The News of 21 Years Ago and the Present
There is perhaps no better comparison of the Daytona News of twenty-one years ago today and the Daytona News of today than one of the financial aspect of the newspaper twenty-one years apart.

During the month of January, 1901, the first month which it was published under the ownership of Mr. Fitzgerald, the gross earnings totaled the sum of $300. The gross expenses of the month were $22, which were covered in $10 for rent and a balance amount for the printing of the four issues during the month. The extra $2 was extended on newspaper.

As against a consumption of 25,000 pounds of paper per month in 1901, the News in January, 1922, will consume approximately 250,000 pounds of newspaper.

As against gross expenses of $22 in January, 1901, the gross expenses in January, 1922, is approximately $1,000.

Four pages per week were the limit then, eight pages today and from 10 to 25 pages Sunday morning. The space book.

The physical plant of the Daytona News at that time consisted of a few cases of type, a job press, and an abundance of odds and ends of machinery. All type in the newspaper was of course set by hand, that date being long before the typetting machine chine was perfected and used to any extent.

The news features were few and far between, consisting of local events, church news, a few state briefs culled from the state papers, hotel news and the news of social events of interest at that time.

The Many Changes Apparent
One little realizes the many changes in mercantile and business life which takes place in a city in the comparatively short span of twenty-one years, but the many changes in Daytona are attested to by the fact that not one firm which advertised in the News of that day is in business at this time in Daytona, under the same company name.

There are a number of men still in business here who were active in Daytona's early business life, but in different occupations, or under different firm names than at present.

In county offices but two men have remained in their respective offices, hold at that time as now Samuel D. Jordan, clerk of the circuit court, and J. Lee McCrory, county judge. Two other county officials held offices at that time which they hold today, but have not been continuous. D. Perkins Smith as county tax collector and J. R. Westcott, supervisor of registration. None of the city officials of twenty-one years ago still hold office.

Just as the Daytona News has grown from its infancy, so are the building, machinery, journal, so has the city, which it has at all times, accomplished successfully, its social, business and mercantile.

As the growth of the community has been the growth of the newspaper, so the growth of the newspaper has been the growth of the community. The Daytona News, under the management of Mr. Fitzgerald, has kept a lap ahead of the rapid growth of the community, that it might of way lend a helping hand and assist in guiding its destinies.

DAYTONA BEACH, FLORIDA

By H. H. WINDSOR, Editor Popular Mechanics Magazine

Among the young men of that day who, gifted with a vision, looked out in every direction from his Wisconsin home for the greater opportunity and the larger service, was the president-elect of the Central West. The East was a long time building up; the Southwest was well started, and the Pacific Coast already had thousands of miles of paved streets. The call of pioneer life was not sufficiently strong, and of those who were coming west, casting about for a place where there was everything to do, and few to do it, the present publisher of the News followed the beckoning call across the continent for resolute workers.

Their selection of the place chosen by this young editor allied with ambition and determination, though for a long time it was

Merchant Tells Interesting Facts of That Day

Country there is no limit to the possibilities. Mr. Hill has been living in Florida thirty-two years, and when he came to Daytona to make his home he conducted a dry goods store on the site now occupied by Anthony Bros. and was the sole owner of that business for six years, when he sold out and retired.

When informed that the Daily News planned to feature in its twenty-first anniversary edition reminiscences and some of the early history of the Halifax country, and Daytona in particular, Mr. Hill said:

"That is one thing upon which I wish to compliment the News. From time to time it publishes some of the interesting facts connected with the early history of the town, the county and the state. It is a splendid pointer to our history."

For our history is unusually interesting and it delights both the old-timers and the newcomers to read it."

In addition to the harmony that prevailed in the early days when the Triple Cities were in the making," continued Mr. Hill, "the most important factor in the amazing development was the ideal geographical location and the wonderful climate."

"I have been over most of the state of Florida. I have lived in Miami, Palm Beach, Stuart and Melbourne, and I have been down the west coast as far as Fort Myers when they didn't have any railroad, but Daytona, in my opinion, is the most beautiful town I have ever seen. It is ideally laid out in a beautiful grove, with a shade of shelter one even on the warmest days, and which makes walking always a pleasure, and, as to climate, it is the intermediate point between the extreme northern section of the state and the extreme south."

"It is, in fact, the only place in the state where a winter visitor can enjoy ideal weather from the first of October to the first of May. If the tourist goes further south he must leave two months earlier on account of the heat, and if he stops further north he will find the season cut short for him because of cold weather. The beach, which is the finest in the world, also has contributed to a very large extent in the development of this section."

The town of Daytona, according to Mr. Hill, was laid out by Mr. Day, who came here from Ohio, and was incorporated in 1876.

"Citizens who were here when I came and who lived here when the town was laid out," said Mr. Hill, "have told me how Daytona came to get its name. Mr. Day had worked hard and faithfully in mapping out the place and, when he got through, there was a meeting of the citizens to decide what the name should be."

"There were some who favored calling it Halifax, while others were inclined to favor Tomoka, the beautiful Indian name. All agreed that either of those names would be splendid, but some one suggested that it would be a fine thing to name it for Mr. Day in recognition of his services."

"Then some one suggested that it be called Daytona. While they were discussing this, a lady, as well as I can remember the story, suggested:

"Why not use the Spanish word for town, 'tona,' and call it Daytona?"

"That suggestion suited everybody, and Daytona it became."

"Daytona, in the beginning, was a long distance from anywhere, and it was a difficult place to reach. Some of the early settlers have told me that the only way they had of getting supplies was by a small boat that made trips now and then from Jacksonville. Of course, the arrival of this boat was as uncertain as the wind, in fact, because if stormy weather prevailed the sail boat waited until the weather cleared. The result was that many times the settlers ran very short of food and if one had a supply of an article, butter, for instance, and the others were out, he would divide with the rest, and thus they managed to get along until the boat got in."

Book Store Was Established in 1882 by Clark

By F. R. MILLS

In October of the year 1880 George H. Clark, one of Daytona's pioneer business men, since deceased, moved to Daytona with his family. After spending some time working in the orange groves, early in 1882 he opened a jewelry store and clock and watch repair shop in a building which then stood on the east side of Beach street over the Halifax river and supported by palmetto piling.

This building, then one of the landmarks of the town, was occupied at that time by the postoffice, the bank and Clark's store. Along with his jewelry store, Mr. Clark carried the usual stock of necessities in the stationery line. The report of one of Daytona's residents who moved to this section in 1891 describes Beach street as having only one business building between Orange and Magnolia avenues—Clark's store. The west side of Beach street was, at that time, taken up entirely with houses in that block, and the "street" consisted then of barely more than a trail, which was covered with water at the time of the fall storms. The entrance to the postoffice, bank and Clark's store was a winding path through a sea of flag grass, one path to the north and another to the south, though what is now Burgoyne Park. It was shortly after this that Daytona experienced her first boom, one feature of which was the building of the sea-wall along the river shore, and at this time Clark's building was moved directly across the street from its first location, and it still stands there, now occupied by Courson's Studio and Dr. W. F. Davey's office.

On March 17, 1914, over twenty years later, the business then known as Clark's Stationery Store, was purchased by Arthur N. Oatis. Thus, on Saint Patrick's day, under the influence of the four-leaf clover, the Daytona Book and Stationery company was first brought into existence, although it was not incorporated until September of the same year. In August, 1919, the business, then rapidly growing, was moved into the new building which it now occupies, just north of its former location. Since its incorporation in 1914 the capital stock of the company has been increased to four times its original figure, and the store has become known as the largest and most up-to-date of its kind south of Jacksonville. A branch store at Daytona Beach, in the postoffice building, is likewise eminently successful, and the directors look forward to still further branching out in the near future.

The established policy of the company has always been to secure for its customers the best possible quality of merchandise of every nature consistent with its name, and the Daytona Book and Stationery company is a good example of a business success where price has always been made secondary to quality and service.

they managed to get along until the boat got in.

"They tell me that for a long time in the early days there was only one dog in the neighborhood, a yellow dog at that, but every man, woman and child was his friend, and he knew them all by their first names. Because he was the only dog, the community dog you might say, everybody loved him, and if anybody had ventured to do him bodily injury I do not doubt that summary punishment would have been meted out to him."

"The love for animals inspired in the early settlers by that lone dog may have had something to do with the determination to protect the squirrels that you see playing around over the streets now."

"The squirrels in those days ran all over the place just as they do now, but there was one particular squirrel that always stayed in the yard of the home on Magnolia avenue where Arcene Smith then lived. Mr. Smith made a pet of this squirrel, and if any one passing along the street stopped and got close enough to the fence the squirrel would leap on his shoulder."

"One day a negro came along and the squirrel playfully ran along the fence by him and the negro hit it with a stick and killed it. That made the citizens so mad that they passed an ordinance prohibiting any person from killing them, and from that day to this the squirrel has had free use of the streets of Daytona."

WELCOME TO DAYTONA

Daytona Offers You

Four excellent Golf Courses, the Great Auditorium, one of the finest in the South, where the world's greatest scholars, statesmen, orators and authors are heard on the Forum platform; the wonderful beach, for bathing, driving and racing; fishing the finest in the world, in both fresh and salt water; Public Band Concerts; some of the finest Automobile Roads the country affords; railroad facilities unsurpassed anywhere in the state; one of the best Yacht Clubs in the state; ninety miles of waterfront for residence purposes, high and dry, commanding a view of the great Atlantic Ocean, or either side of the Beautiful Halifax River. Match it if you can!

All these things and more Daytona Beautiful offers the stranger within her gates. Our motto is: Come on in—we have saved a place for you.

To those who come to Sunny Florida there must be at least one of three incentives—seeking for health, pleasure or business. To each of these classes Daytona offers special attractions and inducements. Health conditions are of the very best. We are blessed with a wonderful all-year climate, where the average in winter is 70 degrees; and in summer, 85.

There is a "tonic in the air" carried by the salt breezes from the ocean. There is a whole-hearted hospitality and a hitch-stay that is always hanging out for the stranger.

Our hands are always outstretched, eager to welcome those who would leave wintry winds behind, and play awhile in delightful Daytona, or who would stay with us and be one with us, as so many others have done.

We believe you will appreciate, as we do, the distinctive Daytona features—those things that make Daytona different.

We can't enumerate here all the advantages that Daytona offers you. We can only say to you: "Come and see!"

Chas. H. McDonald, Resident of Daytona for 63 Years, Tells of Pioneer Life of Years Ago

One of the old time residents of Daytona who remembers very distinctly when bears roamed and catamounts and panthers howled up and down the Halifax river and through what are now peaceful streets in Daytona, is Charles H. McDonald, proprietor of McDonald's boat yard. Mr. McDonald has been living in or near Daytona all of the 63 years of his life, his father having moved to New Smyrna in the '50s, arriving the night after the Indiana massacre two women and four children a short distance below New Smyrna.

Mr. McDonald was born in Rose Bay in 1858, and he talks very interestingly of those early days in the history of the Halifax Country. He established his boat yard at the present site on South Beach street in 1903, starting with a total capital of $150, and has the distinction of never having borrowed a cent of money since he entered the business.

In the nearly nineteen years since the yard was established Mr. McDonald has developed his yard until it is now said by boatmen to be the best in the state of Florida, and he has spent thousands of dollars in improving it, and expects to spend several thousand more next summer in building new ways and practically doubling the capacity—all on an original capital of $150.

Speaking of the early history of Daytona and the Halifax Country and its remarkable development during the last few years, Mr. McDonald said:

"Looking back now it doesn't seem so very long since bears, deer, panthers, alligators and every other sort of wild beast known to Florida roamed at will over what is now Daytona, Seabreeze and Daytona Beach.

"My mother killed a panther with a hatchet when we were living at the place where C. E. Gardner now lives on Beach street. The panther was after some hogs on the place, and she and a negro man went out to run it off. The panther got after the dogs and as the negro man couldn't hit it with a gun my mother hollered to him to hit it with the hatchet.

"Not me!" yelled the negro, and he started for the house. My mother grabbed the hatchet and split the panther's head with it. That happened near where the steam laundry now stands.

"On another occasion there was a big alligator lying in the river near Port Orange. Several of the boys had been shooting at it, but couldn't seem to hurt it. So my brother-in-law, William Johnson, got out a boat and I went out with him to lasso the 'gator. We lassoed him all right, but instead of rolling over and over as all alligators are supposed to do when anything happens to them, this one started right after us and bit a piece three feet long and six inches deep out of the side of the boat. Johnson yelled to me to lie down, but I told him I was already lying down. The alligator kept after us, but we finally beat him off and managed to bring him in. But I thought for a while it was going to be my last alligator hunt.

"There was another time, and that has been only about fifteen years ago, when some of the boys found a bear out in the river just off Turtle Mound and they went out after him in a boat. They got a rope around him and the bear got into the boat. Then they all got out and let him have it. They didn't give up, though, and after a long fight they killed it."

Discussing the remarkable growth of Daytona, Mr. McDonald recalled with a laugh that in 1906 Captain Leon Vann, in discussing the progress of the community, said to him:

"Say, did you know they had five automobiles right here in Daytona?" "We hadn't got used to automobiles even in those days," said Mr. McDonald, "and when I heard that five people in Daytona owned cars I wondered greatly at it."

When Mr. McDonald ventured his $150 capital in the boat yard in 1903 the site which fronts 500 feet on Beach street and extends all the way back to the river, was little more than a marsh.

"I started work with a dredge and a wheelbarrow or two," he said, "and whenever I got two or three dollars ahead I rolled a little more dirt. I never borrowed a cent from the time I started up to the present time, but since 1903 I have spent between $25,000 and $30,000 trying to make it the best in the state.

"When I started in business there was no other boat yard on the Halifax river, and the nearest was at Titusville, more than fifty miles away. The bulk of the work we did at first was in converting sail boats into power boats, and the first boat I built was for E. T. Conrad."

By constructing larger ways next summer and doing considerable dredging Mr. McDonald intends to double the capacity of his yard and then will be in position to repair or fit out any size boat that can ply the Halifax river. This, he says, will prove of great benefit to Daytona as well as to himself, as all the larger

BATHING SUIT STYLES ON DAYTONA BEACH FOR WINTER SEASON

They say blindness is a terrible affliction, and anyone so effected will agree if they could but cast half an eye on the new bathing suit styles which are packed in the trunks coming Daytona-ward at this time.

Herewith is an advance introduction to the garment Miss Nineteen Twenty-two will wear as she basks in the warming suns of the beach this winter. The long dive from the styles of 1921, also shown, to the suit of 1922 is most apparent. Miss Martin, a Ziegfeld Follies star, is the one who is giving the new suit a treat.

Some of the features of the change in style are:

Shorter trunks;
Shorter skirts;
Narrower shoulder bands, and
No sleeves.

We just mention these points for fear some gazing at the picture hadn't noticed the suit.

to large proportions, holding its prominence in the building game since its establishment. About seven years ago he was joined by Frank D. Gheen, an experienced architect of New York, the two continuing and building the business to its present high stage.

Last October the owners, believing that better work at less cost could be accomplished by taking their workmen into the firm, the company was incorporated with many of the workmen as members of the firm, most of whom had been with Fuquay & Gheen for many years. That this was a wise move has been evidenced by the great increase in the business the past three months, when the business totaled $140,000 for that short period.

A second innovation of the past year was the establishment of a large building supply department, where supplies of every kind are carried, both for their own use in building and for sale to other builders. This feature of the business has grown so tremendously in the past few months that the business department alone is accounting for between $50,000 and $100,000 per month, an exceptional record and one which speaks volumes for the integrity of the officials of the company and the good name which they have built in the past years.

Success Attends Twenty-one Years of Building Here

One firm in the Triple Cities whose growth has been parallel to that of the Daily News the past 21 years, and also with that of the cities in which it thrives, is Fuquay & Gheen, Inc., popular builders, contractors and dealers in building supplies, of Daytona Beach.

While the firm has been established here recently than the date of 1901, H. F. Fuquay, its president, was building houses here at that time, afterward forming the company, which the past year was changed to an incorporation, with co-operative features.

In the days of a fifth of a century ago Mr. Fuquay states that it was necessary to climb to a high prominence on the peninsula to get the prospective of the beach residents, of which there were about thirty, most of them along the river front, with but few homes on the ocean front, which was dotted with haphazard houses of insecure construction. The heavy growth of underbrush and tall trees where the main section of the town now lie made the beach more of a wild wood than one may imagine at this time.

Commencing in a small way, the firm which Mr. Fuquay headed took

Improved Property in Schulte Park Changes Ownership

Henry B. Schulte, president of the H. B. Schulte Realty company reports the sale of his property located on business drive in Schulte Park and comprising a fine stream modern residence to M. E. Fowler of Hopkinsville, Ky.

This fine estate, comprising about 100 acres, was built by Mr. Schulte in the spring of 1917, and Mr. Fowler plans to add to its attractiveness by beautifying the grounds and making a grand spot of his new home.

Mr. Fowler is a retired coal magnate of Hopkinsville and recently came to Daytona to become permanent in this lovely scenic spot in the country.

Mr. Schulte also announces that improvements on the Schulte Park property that others are back at it are now being laid out. The work on the roads and landscaping, however, and the building of houses of the property is making an air of production and development.

Excellent soil for the nation.

Plans $20,000 for a Refuse Loans

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The building in the banking year of 1921, which has heretofore been the subject of the Federal Reserve bank's investigation, is now being re-examined. The Federal Reserve board is now authorized to expend $20,000 for the purpose of making a complete survey of the situation in the banking industry.

In his letter Mr. Williams said:
"I do not mean to be disrespectful to the officers of the New York reserve bank—for some of whom I have a sincere regard, and I trust they will take offense if I quote at this point
the following striking, and not entirely irrelevant, extract from the writings of a distinguished author which I ran across last evening in my library. The historian whose work I was reading
said:

"It is, indeed, difficult to understand the qualities or objects that enlist the devotion and compel the worship of humanity. Travelers in the Orient tell of majestic fane, whose mighty walls and countless columns are rich with elaborate carvings. Hall succeeds hall, each more beautifully wrought than the other, until the innermost, the holy of holies, is reached,
and there is found enshrined—a shriv-
eled-up."

"I do not wish to be understood for a moment suggesting that the New York Reserve bank officers are either shriveling or that they bear a family resemblance in any respect to their unhappy ancestors, according to the Darwinian theory—although Governor Strong himself has testified (p. 119 Reserve board's report to Senate) that apparatus has been installed for 'air-drying' them once or twice a day, and it has been observed that their propensity are more irritative than infective."

"The money spent in unnecessary extravagance this past year was not in the final analysis the property of the New York Reserve bank—but, by Act of Congress, 50 per cent of those funds
if they had not been handed out with such lavish prodigality, would have gone into the Federal treasury, to aid in reducing taxation, and the other 10 per cent would have been added to the surplus of the bank."

"It should also be well understood that the New York Reserve bank's great earnings were largely made through the use of hundreds of millions of dollars of Federal Reserve
notes, which were furnished so freely by the government, and upon which the bank paid no interest while it was collecting 3 per cent and 7 per cent interest on loans which it was enabled to make as a result of its possession of those notes. In November, 1920, the New York Reserve bank had outstanding $200,000,000 of Federal Reserve notes, delivered to it by the government without interest. Incidentally, and by way of parenthesis, the official record contains the seamy story of a case where the New York Reserve bank, getting money from the government without interest, loaned it at 6 per cent to a member bank which thereupon loaned to an old customer several hundred thousand dollars at the equivalent of about 200 per cent per annum, on a loan secured by collateral, and repaid in six months. Other instances are mentioned in official records where member banks borrowing, paid heavily from that Reserve bank were exacting interest rates ranging from 20 per cent to 100 per cent from customers at their mercy."

Mr. Williams calls attention to the fact that "while the money was being appropriated for this New York building, the pressure on farmers and merchants for the repayment of their loans was being exerted right and left.
The actual contraction in bills discounted and paper purchased by all branches of the Reserve banks in the three months of great need from November 19, 1920, to February 18, 1921, amounted, as the official figures show,
to $417,000,000. Continuing his analysis of some of the acts of the Federal Reserve and New York Federal Reserve bank, Mr. Williams said:

"My correspondence with Mr. George Foster Peabody (a director of the New York Federal Reserve bank) and with the Federal Reserve board, and the official records, will show, for example, that the banks borrowing most heavily from the Federal Reserve bank were sometimes loaning their funds largely for use—
(a) In speculative deals and operations in sugar and sugar stocks, in oil
and oil stocks, and other speculation
in commodities and industrial stocks.
(b) In promoting the speculation of the executive officers of the borrowing banks who borrowed heavily,
both directly and indirectly, from their own banks and from other member banks."

"(c) In loans to directors of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, to one director over $5,000,000 on highly speculative securities; to another for the purpose of re-lending on Wall street loans at fancy rates of interest.
(d) Funds were also loaned most generously by banks borrowing heavily from the Reserve bank for operations in 'copper' and coconut oil in the Philippines or the Straits Settlements and other remote regions, when farmers at home and dealers in cotton and cotton seed oil, and raisers of wheat and corn were being ruined for the lack of funds."

"(e) And the records show that a bank to which the Federal Reserve bank of New York was loaning at one time about one hundred million dollars was furnishing funds with which to engineer a notorious 'corner' on the New York stock exchange, in which corner the president and two vice-presidents of the bank which was enjoying these huge accommodations
from the New York Reserve bank were largely interested financially.
Such evils as these can best be cured,
or their recurrence prevented by the sunlight of publicity, rather than by the Lethargic ointment of secrecy and oblivion."

It must be remembered in considering the Federal Reserve banking system that the act which created that system gave to seven men the most autocratic power over the finances, and thus over the entire business interests of this country, ever given to any seven men on the face of the earth. I believe it was Lincoln who said that God never made a man good enough and wise enough to have complete control over the body of another man. But here are seven men, and two of them have practically dominated the entire situation, who have absolutely complete control practically over every business operation of every man in America; over every business interest in this country, and that means largely for the world. These men have the power to turn off or turn on the life-giving flow of credit. They can destroy credit and business or they can give life blood to it, and credit is to business what the blood is to the individual life.

The work of these men during the last two years in bringing on the terrific depression from which this country is suffering and which was not, as many have claimed, an "inevitable outcome of the war," reminds me the old, oft-told story of a quack who was called in to attend an ill child. The quack could not diagnose the case,
and so he said to the parents, "I do not know what is the cause of the child's fever, but I am hell on fits—and so I will throw the child into a fit and cure the fit, and thus cure the fever." He egregiously failed to bring on the cure, though he did produce fits. The management of the Federal Reserve board, like the quack, not knowing how to diagnose the business fever of two years ago nor how to treat it like sensible physicians treat
a fever, threw the business of the nation into fits. The result has been similar to that of the quack doctor.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS SHOOTING WEALTHY GA. BUSINESS MAN

ATLANTA, Jan. 7.—Search for the slayer of J. Russell Compton, wealthy young Atlanta business man, whose body was found in his automobile Wednesday night, today turned to a
"ragged stranger" who witnesses testified at the coroner's inquest, was seen at the Sunnyside-Melrose overall factory shortly before Compton was killed. This man disappeared, they said, after telling questioners he was waiting for his wife.

The coroner's investigation was halted today while detectives made a further search for evidence. It will be resumed Monday morning. A thorough search of the premises at Compton's country home was to be made.
Persons living nearby have informed Atlanta police, it was said, that Compton had been seen there practicing shooting with a pistol and that he was accompanied by a young and pretty woman. A revolver, wrapped in an old newspaper, was found at the house yesterday, it was stated.

Efforts also are being made to trace
the purchaser of the small-calibre automatic pistol with which Compton was shot.

Anthony's a City Institution in a Small Sized Town

Anthony Bros., a name which is synonymous with leadership in the local retail field, had its origin in this state, at West Palm Beach over 30 years ago. The Daytona branch was the third store to be opened, in October, 1905, when Anthony Bros. built the present Anthony building on So. Beach street opposite the Casino Building. George W. Balch, vice-president of the company, and manager of the local store, came from New York to the West Palm Beach store 15 years ago and a year later to Daytona. The Anthony Bros. business flourished and expanded not only in this city but in other localities where they opened branches, until today eight prosperous stores are numbered in the chain. In Florida there are five modern stores, each a leader in the community where located, at West Palm Beach, Palm Beach, Fort Pierce, Gainesville and Daytona. In Hot Springs, Va., and White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and in Asheville, N. C. are the other three.

In the spring of 1921 Anthony Bros. purchased the business of the Peck-Hendricks Co. and continued that business on the ground floor of the three-story building which they now occupy at the corner of Beach street and Magnolia avenue. At that time the two upper floors were occupied as the Williams hotel. Acquiring ownership of the building later in the year, Anthony Bros. remodelled the entire structure withing and brought both stores under the one roof. When the three fine floors were opened to the men and women of the Triple Cities the whole Halifax County was given a genuine commercial treat and its first taste of big business. It was the marking of a new era in commercial development and progress in this community. The establishment of such a fine department store in Daytona put a new aspect on the possibilities for retail merchandising in an area of many miles around.

Mr. Balch, who is the general manager of the local business, has personal direction also of the men's and women's departments. A. T. Reynolds, the popular and well known manager of the dry goods and dress goods department, has been with the firm for several years. Mrs. L. R. Watts is manager of the ladies' department on the second floor and Miss M. R. Stewart is in charge of the corset department. Mrs. M. G. Robinson, of Chicago, joined the sales force in ladies' wear last week. The art goods department is in charge of Miss Pearl Jones and in the third floor. The striking window displays and advanced newspaper publicity is the splendid work of J. A. Topham, a man with good training and long experience in this line. The entire organization of the Anthony Bros. Daytona store is eager to render the best possible service to the public. All departments have been stocked with the same quality merchandise which has built up the present successful business of the company. A rest room, and tea room conducted by Miss Antoinette Polz on the second floor, and the Marine Beauty Parlor in charge of Mrs. Dale on the third floor are among special features of Daytona's finest store. Elevator service installed when the building was remodelled makes Anthony Bros. store strictly up to the minute and metropolitan throughout in appointments, with every conveniences for the comfort and pleasure of visitors.

ANENT THE RACES

Daytona, Jan. 6, 1922

We were with Elton on 2000 which unfortunately on the 10th Monday to see the races. To say we were disappointed is an understatement.

Our opinion is the races should have been postponed, especially on the 10th was not sufficiently hot and late and especially as they did not appear to be organized.

Set the grandstand and after everybody was out moved a mile away. It seems to me that a variety of races would be more interesting than one gets tired of sitting there two or three hours and see the three or four times go up and down. I would judge where the grandstand should be and keep it there. I would set a grandstand somewhere in Florida kind to set the pace of something that could be more than 50 or 60 miles. I should rather have the races once a month or even once a season and have something than to have a disappointment twice a month.

"Shepherd of the Hills" Playing at Auditorium Tuesday

The season's entertainment course which opened so successfully Friday evening with the local talent play will be continued Tuesday evening with the photo-play "The Shepherd of the Hills" the silent drama showing of Harold Bell Wright's great book.

A photo-play of good philosophy unfolded in a story that interests, and with an underlying preachment that is timely and valuable is found in "The Shepherd of the Hills." This drama is a picturization of Harold Bell Wright's ever living novel of the same name. Beneath the surface of the story in which there is a quantity of heart interest and dramatic possibilities there is a message that cannot help but find a responsive chord in the hearts of theatergoers. The same qualities that made the novel read and enjoyed by millions will make the photoplay stand long as a drawing attraction.

The scene of the play is laid in the Ozark mountains where our so-called civilization has not yet spread its refining but enervating influences. A father, resolved to blot out as much as possible the sin of his artist son, leaves his life of ease and elegance to come among these people. Among the hills and in the woods, he can drop the carping practicalities of life and can listen to the wind, nature's only voice, as it sings to him its song of ideals, of beauty and of straight. Its message he transmits to the people about him. He does not preach the gospel of good but acts its commandments. As a result he brings peace where there was unrest, forgiveness where there was the spirit of revenge, love where there was hate.

Throughout this play there is no effort at sermonizing, yet as in a crystal, it shows the things that are really big and worth while. It lays out again the battle lines of the old fight of the city against the country and then launches the idea that there are certain men whom the Creator intended to live in the city and to thrive among its artificialities, and some men who were intended to live only in the hills and in the woods, some who could live the life of men and be men no matter where placed. It gives the lesson that fundamental principles of rights and ideals, that sometimes seem to smother among the concrete things of life must in the end triumph. That only truth, justice and loyalty can remain alive in the survival of the fittest. Truly great subject matter for a photoplay and one well worth seeing.

Johnsons Give Away Ten Thousand Pairs of Shoes Christmas

The many friends of the Johnsons, winter residents of the beach, will be interested in a recent act of generosity shown by them when George F. Johnson, president of the Endicott Johnson corporation, George W. Johnson, his son, C. Fred Johnson, his brother, and Charles F. Johnson, his nephew, gave a pair of shoes for Christmas to each of 10,000 persons, school children, school officials, clerical, business, police, telephone girls, railroad yardmen, street cleaners and others in Johnson City, Endicott, Binghamton and surrounding sections.

Bleekman Makes a Plea for Help at the Peabody Park

Daytona Beach, January 7, 1922. Wanted—Carpenters, masons, painters, plumbers, electrical men and anybody who will give the city a day or two in time, or money to finish our park and playground. Cash and checks should be paid to the city treasurer, J. S. Milligan.

We need seats for out of doors, chairs and tables for the building and a stove is needed so when we have a northeaster or northwester we will have a comfortable place to house our people who come to the best place on earth to spend a day, month or year.

Also this park needs some trees planted and other plants set out, and when completed it may be said that no other town can match this park and playground. I am in hopes that everyone will respond with time or money, saying, "I am glad to help complete the job." This is for the Triple Cities and everyone should respond, especially the peninsula people.

Remember, the material needed for this work is to be put in at cost. When the building is ready to lath, many have promised to do that part of the work. We think it best to close the playground until the lathing is finished.

We hope to have the work done on a non-profit basis from the mads to the last brick in the chimney, as the ground was donated to the city by Mr. Peabody.

Notice will be given when each portion of the work is to be done.

W. F. BLEEKMAN,

Chairman City Council.

New England Club is to Meet Monday Afternoon

The stated meeting of the New England club, which is a branch of the Triple Cities Tourist Club, holds its next meeting at the Community church, Daytona Beach, Monday afternoon, January 9, at 2:30 o'clock.

This meeting will be given over entirely to social communications and refreshments and getting acquainted with one another. It is hoped that all members of the New England club will be present and bring as many other New Englanders as possible. The club is very prosperous and much pleasure is afforded by the association.

Cecil Grant, Aged 12, Loses All Four Fingers in Grinder

Cecil Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Grant of Main street, Daytona Beach, who is about 12 years of age, had the misfortune of losing all four fingers on his left hand Saturday afternoon while casually leaning the meat chopper at the Eddy's meat market. Mr. Sheppard, the proprietor, was out of the market at the time and the child apparently became fascinated in the operation of this meat grinder, which is operated by electricity, and without thinking allowed his hand to be carried down into the blades, severing his fingers off before the machine could be stopped. He was immediately taken to the Beaumont hospital, where he is receiving the best of attention and his wounds quickly extend their healing rapidly to both the hand and the eye.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Amersbach have moved from their home at Highlands, Ohio, and have planned to spend a short while at Daytona Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. De Noe, of Jacksonville, Florida, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Marshall, of Miami, are expected to spend the winter at Daytona Beach.

Charles L. Warrington, of Orlando, Fla., arrived Saturday afternoon and is the guest of the hotel and home in Daytona Beach. He is a very well known in the Triple Cities and has been spending his winter here for many years.

Mrs. J. L. Brannon of 256 Pine avenue, Daytona Beach, will spend the day for St. Andrews, where she will spend the weekend and be accompanied by her daughter, who is a student at the St. Joseph's Academy.

Henry W. Bantz, manager of the Princess hotel, arrived Friday night from Chesapeake, Md., where he was to attend the funeral of Mrs. H. Bantz's grandfather, H. B. Bantz, who has been seriously ill for a long time. Mr. Bantz, who is a very well known in the Triple Cities and has been spending his winter here for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. M. and Mr. J. F. M. have arrived from their home in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and are the guests of Mr. Bantz's grandfather, Mrs. Eva Bantz, at the Princess hotel. Mrs. Bantz, who is a very well known in the Triple Cities and has been spending her winter here for many years.

 ...Under the activities of the Board of ...

 ...transportation, both by rail and water, ...
 ...the East Coast canal project, which ...
 ...was finally completed in 1906, conduct ...
 ...of municipal government, county af- ...
 ...fairs, public roads and bridges, adver- ...
 ...tising and publicity, and much more. ...
 ...It was not always smooth sailing to ...
 ...settle and materialize these things. ...
 ...Much committee work, public discus- ...
 ...sion, mass meetings, county conven- ...
 ...tions and travel as well as newspaper ...
 ...work were required to straighten out ...
 ...many a tangle. Then as now the ...
 ...perennial promoter had to be looked ...
 ...after and guarded against; wonderful ...
 ...plans "for the good and advance of ...
 ...the community" were continuously ...
 ...presented by a succession of Walling- ...
 ...fords. One of this gentry by the name ...
 ...of Rieman put on an air of injured ...
 ...innocence when he failed of election ...
 ...as president of the Board of Trade ...
 ...after he had been in our midst but a ...
 ...few months; it was not long there- ...
 ...after when he skipped with a long ...
 ...list of bills from local merchants un- ...
 ...paid. ...
 ...On the whole we were like a great ...
 ...happy family. There was no class ...
 ...distinction nor social division appar- ...
 ...ent as yet. Millionaire merchant ...
 ...and mechanic would mingle freely at ...
 ...public functions as in the custom in ...
 ...most border communities. However, ...
 ...before long arrived the "exclusives." ...
 ...These appointed a committee of one ...
 ...to purchase from Geo. H. Clark an ...
 ...artist's compass; with this they drew ...
 ...a circle six inches in diameter, and ...
 ...within this sacred space no one was ...
 ...permitted to enter unless he could ...
 ...dress in a "swallow" tail coat; later ...
 ...this circle was enlarged to admit ...
 ...those who were able to buy or bor- ...
 ...row an automobile. When, however, ...
 ...they were called upon to sign a peti- ...
 ...tion for the building of cement side- ...
 ...walks they threw up their hands in ut- ...
 ...ter astonishment. "SIDEWALKS! Oh ...
 ...dear no! We do not want any side- ...
 ...walks; we want to live a primitive ...
 ...life; sidewalks would make the place ...
 ...too civilized." Could you beat that? ...
 ...However, the germ took and there- ...
 ...after the younger set would play the ...
 ...exclusive act; the boys would appear ...
 ...in swallow tail coats ready made from ...
 ...the clothing merchant's shelf with ...
 ...sleeves and trousers, and starched ...
 ...collars reaching up to the ...
 ...ears nearly, on figures utterly unsuit- ...
 ...ed to wear them, looking like Mack ...
 ...Sennet caricatures in movieland. The ...
 ...girls, bless them, who had always ...
 ...kept clean faces now calomined their ...
 ...cheeks and rouged their lips, and ...
 ...they, too, imagined that they were ...
 ...really of the exclusive set, and so ...
 ...they were while the tomfoolery lasted. ...
 ...Before closing these reminiscences, ...
 ...I cannot refrain from paying my re- ...
 ...spects to those women of Daytona, ...
 ...with invalid husbands on their ...
 ...hands or who had lost their husbands ...
 ...and with no other means at their ...
 ...command but a clear mind and a ...
 ...stout heart, plunged bravely into ac- ...
 ...tive business pursuits for the support ...
 ...of themselves and theirs; or to ...
 ...those who just for the pure pleasure ...
 ...it gave them and the independence it ...
 ...created for them. Perhaps most or ...
 ...all of them are too modest to have ...
 ...their names mentioned, and I realize ...
 ...that I am trespassing on delicate ...
 ...ground, nevertheless while men are ...
 ...usually given credit for all they have ...
 ...done and are doing, and then some, ...
 ...the women very seldom receive recog- ...
 ...nition. So here goes—I am getting ...
 ...bold headed anyhow and am not ...
 ...afraid of losing the few hairs left. ...
 ...Mrs. Mary Troy of the old Troy ...
 ...House, now the Volusia Inn, started ...
 ...with a small cottage to accommodate ...
 ...a few boarders when she was left a ...
 ...nearly penniless widow many years ...
 ...ago, and from that built up a really ...
 ...much patronized and good paying ho- ...
 ...tel business. Mrs. Mary E. Silvernail ...
 ...from a small beginning built up the ...
 ...Oaks Hotel on Ridgewood avenue, ...
 ...which she sold shortly before her ...
 ...death to Gordon B. Hayward, the pre- ...
 ...sent owner. The Morgan House, at ...
 ...the corner of Volusia and Palmetto ...
 ...avenues, was built up from a small ...
 ...beginning by Mrs. Morgan, now Mrs. ...
 ...B. F. Smith. The Magnolia on Ridge- ...
 ...wood avenue was acquired by Mrs. ...
 ...Celeste Hinks in 1907 and developed ...
 ...into a profitable tourist hotel. The ...
 ...Howard House on Volusia avenue ...
 ...owed its popularity to the untiring ...
 ...and never flagging attention of Mrs. ...
 ...J. C. Howard. The Gables Hotel, too, ...
 ...owed its success to Mrs. S. H. Mose- ...
 ...ley as an exceptional good cook and ...
 ...fine housekeeper. The Hamilton Ho- ...
 ...tel on South Palmetto avenue has ...
 ...been successfully and personally con- ...
 ...ducted by Mrs. I. M. Mabbette. When ...
 ...her husband died she had the care of ...
 ...five children to raise and edu- ...
 ...cate. After several business ventures ...
 ...which proved not very profitable, ...
 ...Mrs. Mabbette came into possession ...
 ...of The Hamilton Hotel, where she ...
 ...has proved her ability as a fine hos- ...
 ...tess in the conduct of one of the most ...
 ...of the city.

Two Great Products of the TRIPLE CITIES ICE CREAM CO.

Stiling's Ice Cream

Misto Distilled Water

"IT'S PURE, THAT'S SURE"

SINCE 1916 STILING'S ICE CREAM HAS BEEN INCREASING IN POPULARITY. THE CAPACITY OF THE PRESENT COMPLETELY EQUIPPED FACTORY HAS BEEN BROUGHT UP TO OVER 100 GALLONS PER DAY. THIS UNEXCELLED PRODUCT IS ABSOLUTELY PURE AND SANITARY; NOT TOUCHED BY HUMAN HANDS. DURING ALL THESE YEARS THE "QUALITY ALWAYS FIRST" POLICY HAS BEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR AN UNBROKEN PERIOD OF STEADY GROWTH AND REMARKABLE SUCCESS. THUS IT IS CLEARLY EVIDENT THAT THE FAITHFUL ADHERENCE TO THE PRODUCTION OF DELICACIES OF UNUSUAL MERIT HAS RESULTED IN THE PRESENT PERFECTION AND PRESTIGE OF STILING'S ICE CREAM.

Stiling's Ice Cream is the popular candidate for favor in every family. Mother loves to order it for dessert because she knows it's the ONE thing that everybody is ALWAYS sure to like.

Stiling's Ice Cream is more than a luxury—it is a real food. It should be a regular part of every diet. It gives children additional energy and strength, so necessary for their growth and health.

Food and nutrition experts pronounce ice cream one of our very best foods.

ONE QUART OF ICE CREAM IS EQUAL IN ENERGY FOOD VALUE TO

10 3-4 lbs. tomatoes
3 3-4 lbs. chicken

1 1-3 lbs. pears
1 2-5 lbs. beefsteak

or 11 eggs.

These facts show that Ice Cream is highly nourishing and extremely economical.

Consider in addition the wonderful deliciousness of Stiling's Ice Cream, and you will realize doubly that there is every reason why you should use it most liberally.

SPECIAL MIXTURES MADE TO ORDER

"Purer Than the Purest"

The installation of our new H-2-O Still makes it possible for the people of the Halifax County to obtain at slight cost the same drinking water recommended by world-prominent physicians and adopted by the U.S. Government hospitals, etc. The Berger Titer shown here is furnished by us for the convenience of "Misto" consumers.

WATER CONTAINING MINERAL AND ORGANIC MATTER IS NOT PURE

The statement that mineral matter can be removed from water by filtering is untrue. If salt cannot be removed by the filter, neither can lime and other chemical salts in solution. A filter may seem to remove matter by clarifying, but clean water is very impure and heavy in organic and mineral matter. Germs "pass through the interstices of a filter 100 abreast, so minute are they."

Distilled water is the only water absolutely and wholly free from gases, mineral and organic matter.

H-2-O WATER FREE FROM GASES—FULLY AERATED

The distillate from our H-2-O still contains the full amount of oxygen, or air, contained in natural spring water, namely, 10 parts to the 1,000. All gases volatilize and pass away through the open condenser tubes before condensation begins, thus leaving a sweet, palatable, delicious drinking water, as well as a water which may be, and is, used by chemists for their most delicate reactions.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE PRODUCT OF THE H-2-O STILL MADE BY THE U.S. BUREAU OF STANDARDS, AT WASHINGTON, SHOWS THAT OUR WATER IS "Purer Than the Purest."

THE CURATIVE PROPERTIES OF DISTILLED WATER

Therapeutically, distilled water is invaluable and is prescribed by physicians the world over in cases of arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries), old age, gall and bladder stones, indigestion, rheumatism, stomach and kidney troubles, modifying babies' milk, and the drinking of it from a glass, daily is ordered by noted specialists as the best way of aid of old age and maintenance of health. It is a typical and reliable water for medicinal purposes under the supervision of distilled water.

Crystal-Clear, Delicious

REFRESHING, HEALTHFUL AND PURE
"MISTO" DISTILLED WATER IS A BORN AND A BLESSING TO ALL WHO DESIRE NOT ONLY A WATER WHICH TASTES DELICIOUSLY SATISFYING, BUT WHICH IS ACTUALLY RESTORATIVE AND AS PURE AS SCIENCE CAN DEVISE.
